Fort Washington,
Pennsylvania, US

Dh51 million

Situated on 29 acres of land, this 40,000-square-foot mansion designed by Rafael Viñoly was built around a grand stone courtyard. It's divided into three wings with views of the courtyard and grounds from the floor-to-ceiling windows. The formal rooms include a two-storey entrance hall, a two-and-a-half storey living room with 30-foot ceilings and five sets of French doors leading to a terrace.

The library and study have marble fireplaces, while the kitchen has two islands, three pantries and a casual dining area. The master suite features marble baths, dressing rooms, a sitting room and an office. A private flight of stairs leads to a tower with 360-degree views of the estate.

Coorabell, near Byron Bay, Australia

Dh10 million

The Music Farm was originally a dairy farm, but in the 1970s a musician used his inheritance to create a place where other musicians could live and work. To complete his dream, he installed state-of-the-art recording equipment and created a beautiful timber studio just 15 minutes from Byron Bay. The original farmhouse has been renovated and has three bedrooms and there are two separate cottages.

All the property's buildings are linked by private driveways and the grounds boast mulberry trees that are more than 100 years old, fig trees, hoop pine and eucalyptus, garden statues, water features, and even a herb and vegetable garden complete with a chicken coop.
